SEED SHOW TO OPEN TUESDAY

AMERICAN PLAN STUDY INVITED

Program of Idaho Falls Event Contains Many Prominent Speakers

(Special Dispatch)
BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 5.—The program of the Idaho State Seed show to be held at Idaho Falls has been completed and on each of the four days there are prominent speakers, according to C. H. Ahlson, secretary of the show. Beginning on January 19 the show continues until the 23, inclusive. Speakers are expected from the University of Idaho, Canada and several of Idaho's neighboring states.

Tuesday, the first day of the show, is Seed Day. The talks will cover all phases of potato and seed production. G. H. Cutler, professor of field husbandry, University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, will be the speaker of the evening. Mr. Cutler is president of the International Crop Improvement association and will have an important message to deliver to the people of this state on agricultural problems.

Wednesday will be devoted to dairying and poultry—the two subjects which are uppermost in the minds of many farmers throughout the state. Specialists in these departments are scheduled to discuss problems of immediate importance. This day has also been designated as Bonnevillite day and all families of Bonnevillite county are expected to attend. In the evening the people attending the show will have the opportunity of hearing Dr. A. H. Upham, president of the University of Idaho.

Thursday is Marketing Day. The principal speakers are Dean E. J. Idings, University of Idaho, Maurice Keating, president, Idaho Seed Growers' Marketing company, Idaho Falls, H. K. Wiley, president, Idaho Seed Growers' association, Springfield, Idaho, G. B. Ross, secretary of the Idaho State Fair, and several other main speakers for Thursday evening. Friday the wine breeders of Idaho will hold a consignment sale, thus offering the farmers of the eastern portion and southern sections of the state the opportunity to purchase purebred stock.

All indications point to the fact that the seed show of this year will have to compete for the premiums amounting to $1500 offered by the State Seed show. Grain and small seed exhibited at the International Grain and Hay show, Chicago, have been returned for competition at the show. The largest class of entries will be in potatoes. A clash will come between the northern dry-land potato and the southern irrigated potatoes of Idaho. George J. Cannon, president of the Northwest Potato Growers' association, will judge the potatoes and score each individual sample. Canada will be represented at the show.

RAISE FUND FOR RECLAMATION DATA

SALT LAKE, Jan. 5.—To prepare data and briefs on Utah's position in the matter of the distribution of the waters of the Colorado river a fund of $15,000 was made available yesterday when the board of governors of the Commercial club underwrote $5,000 of the amount needed. Subscriptions of individuals made up the remainder of the fund. The fund is provided on the promise of Governor Mabey that he will request an appropriation at the next session of the legislature to reimburse the subscribers. The data to be prepared is to be presented at a meeting called during the latter part of January at Washington, by Herbert Hoover, chairman of the federal commission on the distribution of the waters of the Colorado river. It was explained that while the Colorado river would benefit a vast area in Utah, a comprehensive report was needed.

President Galigher of Utah Associated Industries Reports on Results

SALT LAKE, Jan. 5.—An annual statement of the development and scope of the Utah Associated Industries was issued yesterday by J. E. Galigher, president of the organization, in which he declared the consolidation of business groups under the leadership of the Associated Industries essential and the means of "clearing up misunderstandings."

Mr. Galigher also discussed the "American plan" of employment and invited a study of the system. His statement, in part, follows: "The past year has been one of distinct achievement as far as the work of the Utah Associated Industries is concerned. It must be remembered that we are always dealing with the frailties of human nature and that when stern opposition faces some men and menaces them to the extent of financial loss for the vindication of a principle, it happens as it has always occurred in history, that disappointments sometimes are registered. The Associated Industries has an opportunity to view at close range the conscientious actions and the consistent adherence of our business leaders to certain fixed principles; and it is refreshing indeed for me to report that the business really thrives. There is a new era in the history of our state. Groups of men in the same line of business come to common conclusions. They turn from a point of contact through the Associated Industries with representatives of all other groups who are likewise working for a better understanding between the agencies in industry and for a greater and more productive Utah. Every feeling and every misunderstanding are laid aside, and in the advancement of the cause of industrial freedom members of the association do not render their service to the state but rather to the people. They do make personal sacrifices for the thing which they wish shall be ultimately established in this state, namely, the American plan of employment. There are still lines of business in this state who have not yet seen their way clear to break away from tradition and who still follow the lines of least resistance."

"It is the hope of the association through a process of education, to impress them with the shortsightedness of such a program and the injuries which they are causing to industry by adhering to a policy which, while it may not immediately gains, is wholly against the interests of society, and must ultimately be overthrown. The American principle in employment relations is viewed today by society as a correction of abuses which have crept into industry through the centuries, the public being sorely burdened by the consequences of their philosophy. Artificial standards have been erected that can not possibly endure. Yet while they are in operation, the public is being sorely burdened by the consequences of their philosophy. OGDEN NURSE ON ASSOCIATION BOARD

SALT LAKE, Jan. 5.—At the annual meeting of the Utah State Nurses' association held yesterday afternoon and evening at the Civic Center, Mrs. M. J. Crossland was elected to the board of directors. Mrs. Crossland is a resident of Ogden and has been active in the nursing profession for many years. She was elected to the board of directors of the association, which is composed of nurses from all over the state.

The resignation of Mrs. Crossland was accepted by a resolution thanking her for her efforts in the association as its president and one of its directors. Mrs. Crossland tendered her resignation from the association because of her intention of leaving Salt Lake within a few months and she said that she felt it would not be fair to the organization for her to accept an office which might be hers by right of precedence or choice.

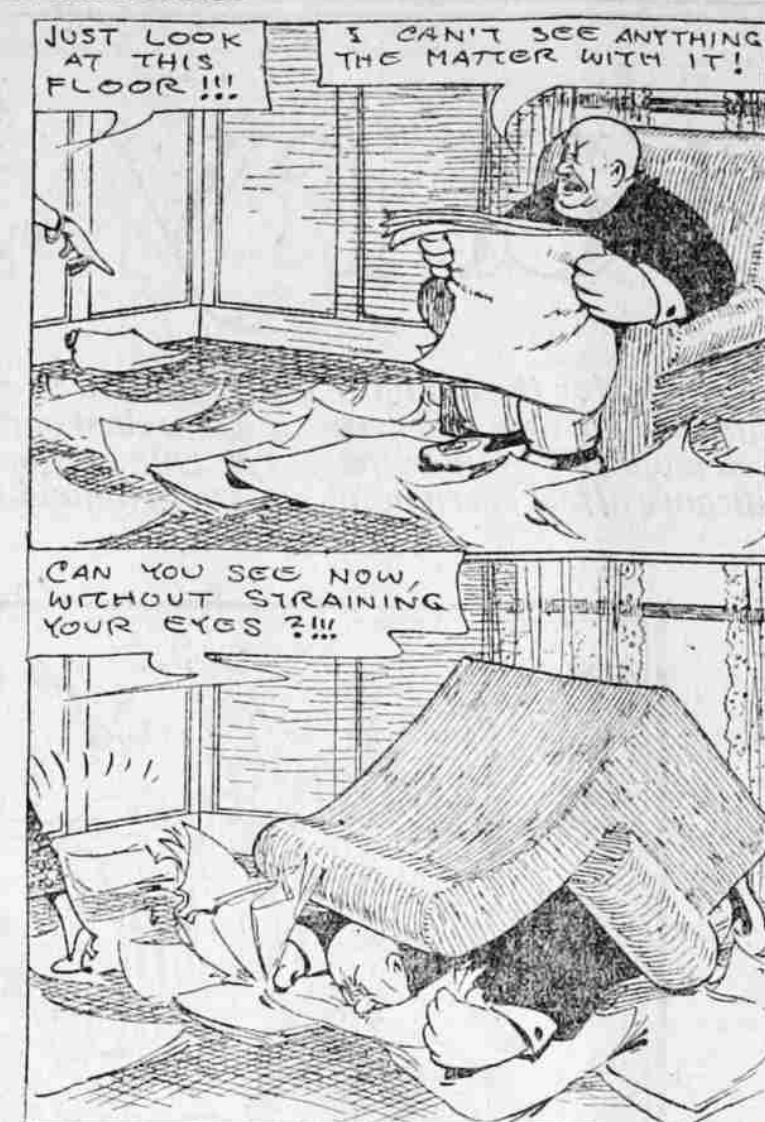

Four vacancies on the board of directors were filled by the election of Miss Anne Keegan, superintendent of nurses at Holy Cross hospital, Mrs. Dorothy M. Hall of Ogden, Miss Kate Bloom of L. D. S. hospital and Miss Josephine Smith of the county hospital. The latter takes the place of Mrs. Williams of Ogden, whose resignation was read and accepted. Miss Daphne Dalton of the L. D. S. hospital was elected president of the association; Miss Alice Hubbard, vice president; and Miss Josephine Smith, secretary by unanimous vote, and Miss Beatrice Smith was elected treasurer, also by acclamation.

In a brief talk Mrs. Crossland reviewed the work of the association for the last year, noting that it was not as important in the nursing world as its predecessor, 1920. She spoke of the gift of the nurses of America of $50,000 to the Florence Nightingale school for nurses at Bordeaux, France, given in memory of the nurses who made the supreme sacrifice in the world war. She also urged that the nurses of Utah stand firmly for better state legislation in matters pertaining to the welfare of the association.

Empty Plates Emphasize Need For Food Relief

SALT LAKE, Jan. 5.—Empty dinner plates were placed before a large number of business men last night in the Hotel Utah after they had accepted an invitation to a "banquet" extended by former Governor Simon Bamberger. The ballroom was also dark and shadowy and candles flickered and sputtered and took the place of electrical illumination. Max A. Aaron presided as toastmaster. The purpose of the foodless meal, Mr. Aaron explained, was to impress upon the audience how it felt to be hungry and have nothing to eat. They were reminded of the increasing unpleasantness and suffering which would ensue if they were compelled to forego not only one meal but several meals. They were asked to imagine themselves the victims of circumstances which enforced constant hunger and in which the souls of men were maintained only by an occasional meager meal of tasteless soup or coarse, almost unpalatable bread. If they could imagine such conditions, they were told, they would have a faint idea of the suffering, misery and slow death which prevails among a half million orphans in the European sections which were scouring for food. The banquet last night was a feeding of these orphans and saving hundreds of them from death, the Jews of America have undertaken to raise a fund of $14,000,000.

The fund is to be obtained under the direction of the American Jewish relief committee of which a branch designated as the Jewish relief committee of Utah has been organized. The committee has been organized to raise the fund by the sale of bonds and by the collection of contributions. The fund is to be used for the relief of the orphans and for the saving of the Jews of Europe from death. The fund is to be raised by the sale of bonds and by the collection of contributions. TELLS DYSPETICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, etc. Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due to the use of an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic indigestion is exceedingly dangerous and unless it is treated by one of two things...

Either the patient must go on a limited and carefully selected diet of solid foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little liquid Magnesia at their meals. There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than liquid Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a detergent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further action. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the most direct, natural and healthful way without need of pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Blaud's Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the liquid form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on what to eat.—Advertisement.

BY CONDO

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Bill Bronson and Virginia Tremont find themselves forest prisoners in Bill's cabin in the Clearwater of Canada. Bill was hired by Virginia to guide her in her search for her fiancé, Harold Lounsbury, who vanished in the Clearwater six years before. Her fiancé and a cook, Vosper, completed the party. Bill and Virginia were engulfed in forcing Grizzly river. Bill saved Virginia's life. The others, left on the opposite shore, deserted. Bill hopes to look also for the lost mine of his father, murdered by a partner.

GO ON WITH THE STORY.
Bill Bronson found the days much happier than she had hoped. She liked the hours of sober talk in the evenings. Sometimes they would play through the records and so well had Bill made his selections that she never tired of them. She had her lonesome hours, but so many as she had expected. When there was nothing to do, she would take out one of the old magazines that Bill had brought up to read on the winter nights.

She had abundant health. The experience seemed to build her up rather than injure her. Her muscles developed, she breathed deep of the cold mountain air, and she had more energy than she could easily spend. She fought away the tendency to grow careless in dress or appearance. She kept her few clothes clean and mended, she dressed her hair as carefully as in her home.

Their cabin life was reduced by their frequent excursions into the wilds. The study of nature was constantly more absorbing to the girl. In these excursions Virginia learned to use her pistol with reasonable accuracy. Her strength increased, she could follow wherever Bill led. They did not forget their graver business. Bill Virginia kept watch for a track that was not an animal track, a blaze on a tree not made by the teeth of porcupine or grizzly, a charred cooking rack over the ashes of a fire, as yet they had found no sign of human wayfarers other than themselves.

Bill never ceased to search for his mine. He looked for blazes, too, for a sign of a fire, or a pile of washings beside a stream. When he found an open stream he would wash the gravel, and it seemed to him he combed the entire region between the two little tributaries of Grizzly river indicated on his map. But with the deepening snow search was ever more difficult. Unlike Virginia, he was almost ready to give up.

RECOMMENDS 12 YEARS FOR BANDIT
SALT LAKE, Jan. 5.—Recommendation that Jean Fox, 25 years of age, Skaggs Grocery store holdup, be confined in the state prison for 12 years was made yesterday by Judge L. B. Wright to the state boards of pardons. Fox admitted when he pleaded guilty to the offense that he had served a term for burglary in Montana three years ago, but declared that he had "gone straight" since until the grocery store holdup. He took part in the robbery after vain efforts to obtain work in Salt Lake, he said.

FOY and a companion, who has not been apprehended, held up the Skaggs store at 234 South Main street on the evening of November 13 just after closing hours. Receipts had been received from the other stores for the day, and the bandits escaped with $1,000. Fox was captured a few days later and pleaded guilty.

DENIES CONTRACT LET FOR U. S. BANK

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5.—A protest was filed today by Senator W. H. King against the letting of a contract for the construction of a building for the Salt Lake branch of the reserve bank without receiving approval by the state architects and engineers. The protest was filed by John A. Calkins, governor of the federal reserve bank of San Francisco.

Governor Calkins declared that no plans have been drawn, no architects engaged and no bids called for for the construction of the branch bank building. The bank head said he had received the contract from Senator King and that he had answered that no reason exists for such a protest as he sent. Governor Calkins declined to comment further on the matter and would not say whether bids for the building may be called for.

NO FUND FOR UTAH TUBERCULAR CATTLE

SALT LAKE, Jan. 5.—Following a conference yesterday between state and federal officials, the federal department of agriculture, Commissioner A. A. Hinkley, of the state department of agriculture, it was announced that no definite decision had been reached with regard to the provision of funds whereby the share of the cost of the campaign against tuberculosis in dairy cattle may be obtained.

The state is permitted by the law to indemnify its dairy cattle as slaughtered because of having tuberculosis. The money, however, comes from the state bounty fund, and that is now about exhausted, until the 1922 taxes begin to come in next November and December, according to Mark Tuttle, state auditor.

work of red lines in his cheeks and a yellow tinge to the whites of his eyes, he would have seemed in superb physical condition. The evidence lay rather in the expression of his face, and most of all in the surroundings in which he lived.

He was utterly unkempt and slovenly. His coarse beard covered his lips, his matted hair was dull with dirt, his skin was scarcely less black than that of the Indians themselves. Here was the man Virginia had pierced the north to seek.

"What do you want?" he asked. "You're Lounsbury, of course," Bill answered. "Sure, I ask you again—what do you want?"

"You've been living on the Yuga. You came up here to trap my territory." Lounsbury remembered his staunch allies—Pete and Joe. "And what if I did?"

"You knew I trapped here. You brought up Joe Robinson and a breed with you. You meant to clean up this winter—all the furs in the country."

Harold's face drew in a scowl. "And what are you going to do about it?" "The queer thing is—," and Bill spoke quietly, slowly, "I'm not going to do anything about it—now. I didn't come to see you about trapping. I came about Virginia Tremont."

"Virginia?" he cried. "My God, what do you know about her?" "I know she's a fair representative of her breed—pushed through the door and came inside, inside."

Bill's face was stern as the cliffs of the Selkirk when he turned again to Harold. "I'm not a simpleton," he said simply. Harold shrugged. "One doesn't marry squaws," he replied. "I came to find Harold Lounsbury a gentleman," Bill went on in the same strange, flat voice, "and I find—a squaw man."

Many ambitious men and women live only half a life—and don't know it

No person whose nerves are continually irritated, whose appetite and digestion are disturbed, or who doesn't sleep well has more than half his normal chance for success in life. For weakness, debility, anemia and general lack of tone are a serious handicap to anyone.

Those who drink tea or coffee are often sufferers from these conditions. Tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance which has a decided stimulant action on the nerves.

Each cup of strong coffee contains about as large a dose of caffeine as your doctor would ordinarily give to a very sick person.

You can readily see that the effect of giving this stimulant regularly to a well person might finally have a tendency to make him sick.
